MONDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 9, 1882.

"PERSONAL GRIEVANCES."

Certain of our esteemed and powerful contemporaries of the press who favor "the only man" with their valuable support, whenever they wish to say the thing which they imagine will reflect most discredit upon the editor of this journal than any other act of his life, remind him that he supported Mitchell for the senate ten years ago; and two or three of them, to make his humiliation and disgrace as deep as possible, have recalled the fact that when Mitchell was elected on that occasion, he, (the present editor of THE OREGONIAN) delivered an address of congratulation on the event at a public meeting held in this city. This is a severe arraignment, or would be, were it possible to say nothing in mitigation or defense. But J. H. Mitchell was not then before the country in the character which no journal now can truthfully describe without being open to the charge of publishing "obscene" personalities. No one who then supported him had the least suspicion that he was an impostor sailing under an alias to conceal the history of a most disreputable and criminal life. We suspect, therefore, that those who supported him before are at least as excusable as those who support him now. Again, these large-minded contemporaries of the press are of opinion that THE OREGONIAN opposes Mitchell because its editor has a "personal grievance"—said grievance consisting in his removal from an official position six or seven years ago; and they profess to think too that if he could get office thereby he would readily support Mitchell now. Here is a view of their high esteem of office and low esteem of journalism which, we humbly submit, does not do them the credit which their talents deserve. May we be permitted to remind them that THE OREGONIAN is never warped by considerations which they show (with due submission again) would be so potent with them? This journal, since the true character of the individual called J. H. Mitchell became known, has never ceased to oppose him whenever he has presented himself for public place. Its course on this matter has been consistent throughout. Again, its present editor is not sorrowing over the loss of office; he is not seeking, nor would he accept any office whatever. When Mitchell caused his removal from the only official position he ever held, he did him a favor rather than an injury, for which he is duly grateful; and therefore he has no "personal grievance" whatever against J. H. Mitchell. When it is said that he "would now be a supporter of Mitchell had Mitchell only kept him in office," there is misconception again. Mitchell could not have kept him in office, for the very good reason that in no event would he have remained much longer in official position. To be a professional office-holder is a dignity beyond his ambition, and to hold an office with Mitchell standing over him as a "boss" did not suit his temperament years ago, and in all probability would not suit it any better now. Our esteemed contemporaries talk about office as a "fat thing," very much to be desired. Our own views are more humble; we are content with the moderate income to be gained by close attention to an unambitious calling, and willingly leave the "fat things" of office to those who have higher views concerning them than we can entertain. Hence THE OREGONIAN does not oppose J. H. Mitchell either because its editor was removed from office, or because he wants to bring about conditions which would prepare the way and make his path straight to office again. Few things, indeed, could give him more satisfaction than to relinquish to his esteemed contemporaries of the press, as he hereby does, and to all others whom it may concern, his claims and expectations, all and singular, to official place, with all the franchises, emoluments, honors and "fat things" thereunto pertaining. Had he desired to remain in office he could have done so by the customary subservience to the "boss." Had he desired to get into office again he could have fixed it up very easily with the "boss" long ago. Never has THE OREGONIAN, either under the direction of its former editor or its present one, offered or suggested the least opposition to Mitchell for other than public reasons, which it has fully stated. Upon the sufficiency of these reasons the public have passed judgment; so that for many years the republican party has been defeated, whenever it has appeared that its success could be construed as an approval of Mitchell as a man or a politician. And even now, with a strong republican majority in the legislature, he has failed, before the eyes of the whole country, to obtain the election he has sought—though he has sought it with a desperate and unscrupulous energy. It may be thought sufficient to attribute a "personal grievance" to the editor of this journal; but what "personal grievance" is to be assigned to the members of the legislature who refuse to vote for him, and to the masses of the people who sustain them? And where is the "personal grievance" of the New York Times when it says his "very candidacy is a disgrace to Oregon," or of the multitude of respectable newspapers in all parts of the United States which express sentiments of similar kind?

THE INVESTIGATION.

Another attempt to bribe in the interest of J. H. Mitchell has been exposed. Major James Bruce, a member of the house of representatives from Washington county, says under oath that Chas. B. DuBois, doorkeeper of the senate and a well-known stalwart striker, offered him the United States marshalship of Washington territory if he would vote for Mitchell, promising that the office was "worth $20,000." He avowed that the business was not pleasant for him, and that he did it at the suggestion and earnest solicitation of Mitchell. Bruce makes this statement positively, and gives dates and attendant circumstances which support it. DuBois, of course, denies. What else could be expected when denial is the only way of avoiding the penitentiary? But with unprejudiced people, and particularly with those who know both parties, this denial will have no sort of influence. Major Bruce has lived in Washington county for twenty years, and is known the state over as a good citizen and a man of high character; while DuBois is and has been for years a hanger-on about Boss Mitchell's political table, a hungry supplicant for crumbs of patronage of the poorer sort. A ready tool, he was sent on a disreputable errand, and, as a matter of course, swears at the dictation of the boss and to save himself from the penitentiary. This exposure is in line with those which have preceded it, and more directly than either of them shows Mitchell's personal management in the game of corruption which has been desperately played at Salem.

But this is not all. Other exposures will follow. At least two more witnesses will tell of vicious attempts to influence their votes. Although Mitchell professed a desire for thorough investigation when the first charge was made, he is now employing every possible means to delay and thwart it. His member in the committee, Tanner of Multnomah, loses no opportunity to obstruct the proceedings, and Mitchell himself, finding that the determined purpose of Messrs. Jamison and Patterson, the other members, would yield neither to persuasion or trickery, went so far on Saturday as to beg of a gentleman interested in the matter, that the inquiry so ruinous to his prospects be stopped. It is not pleasant to advertise to the world things whose publicity will bring discredit upon the state, and THE OREGONIAN does it reluctantly. It is better to endure humiliation now than shame hereafter.

A dispatch from Salem received at a late hour last evening says that the situation there is unchanged.

THE BOSS OR NOBODY.

By the last talk of the disreputable lobby still remaining at Salem it is given out that the programme of the boss is to hold on till the very last day of the session under the belief that the republican members who oppose him will vote for him at the last hour, rather than take the chance of final adjournment without an election.

This is extremely shallow. In the first place the opponents of the baffled boss will not be the persons responsible for the failure to elect. That responsibility will rest upon those who take the absurd position that there is "only one man," and assert that they will have him or prevent an election. In the next place they who oppose this "only man," and who oppose him solely because of his unworthiness, are ready to go to the people with the question. They have no fears of the result. They are altogether willing to leave it to the republican party of the state to say whether this man or any other is to be set up as a boss over it, with every one required to render him duty and pay him homage. When personal allegiance to this debased politician is made the test of loyalty to the republican party then the number of "faithful republicans"—faithful according to the ring definition—will be limited to the mercenaries, who even now constitute his chief body of supporters.

The republican members who refuse to vote for him have no favorite candidate. Again and again have they offered to vote for any one of the many able and worthy men of the state from whose number a choice might be made. Who can best afford to go to the people—those who have offered to elect any worthy man, or those who cry "Mitchell or nobody"?

But "Mitchell or nobody" is the talk more of the lobby whom this paltry politician has gathered on the principle of natural selection around him, than of any considerable number of the members. There are enough of the latter who may be trusted for sufficient good sense to find a solution of the problem now presented. The eighteen have only to wait till the others get ready to act, when the whole matter may be easily accommodated. It is preposterous to talk of no election, with a view of going directly to the people in behalf of Mitchell. Of course we think his supporters have made a great mistake in pushing him as they have done; but as no one wants to accuse them of idiocy, it is not for a moment to be supposed that they think seriously of appealing to the people on a straight issue of "Mitchell or nobody." This is not going to happen. If however, it be announced in any quarter that it will happen, then it may be answered that they who have refused to be coerced into support of this grovelling politician and place seeker, have only to welcome the issue and wait for their vindication.

A new departure has been made in some of the English schools. At Liverpool the school board has decided to make occasional use of novels for reading exercises. Sir Walter Scott's novels will be first introduced. While the novelty of this plan will offend many conservatives, there is much to be said in its favor. Although the school readers now employed are better compiled than those formerly in use, they are far from perfection, and are frequently disfigured by passages of an insipid or sentimental character. Nor is this the only error. Many of them contain extracts from Shakspeare that can only be fittingly rendered by a tragedian or elocutionist; and yet such passages are chosen as reading exercises for children scarcely in their teens. It often happens that the pupils cannot understand what they read, and the lesson, as a consequence, becomes dull and tedious instead of cheerful and entertaining. Suppose that Hamlet's soliloquy and the dialogues of Brutus and Cassius were packed away in the corners of a dusty closet, and their place supplied by suitable extracts from Scott and Dickens. What boy could read or hear the stirring account of the tournament at Ashby-de-la-Zouche uninterested? Passage after passage that would attract the attention of boys and girls alike might be taken from "David Copperfield" and "Nicholas Nickleby." Conservative wiseacres would disapprove of the change, but it would advance the elocutionary standard of our public schools and improve the general intelligence of the pupils.

The Mormons have advanced from remonstrance to resistance and defiance of federal authority. Governor Murray recently made appointment of several competent gentiles to fill certain offices, as he was empowered under the recent act of congress. One of these appointees, probate judge, demanded the office and records of the polygamous incumbent and was flatly refused, metaphorically kicked out, and so the case goes to the district court, which will be very apt to regard United States statutes as of higher authority than Mormon revelations. Tax-payers are advised by the Tribune not to pay their taxes to the old officials, and those who do, are warned that they will have them to pay a second time. Now the sooner and more openly the issue is made up and fought out in courts or on the battle-field the better we shall be pleased. It is no kindness to the Mormons to let things drift as they have been doing for many years past. The final settlement will only be harder to make. If it turns out that the Mormons think more of polygamy than all the rest of their religion, then they and their religion, too, will have to be wiped out, for this country, without distinction of party, sect, nationality or previous condition, has taken a big oath that polygamy, under whatever name or guise, shall be extirpated, root and branch.

The Statesman observes with deep satisfaction that nearly all the federal offices in the state have been removed to Salem. The business of the Astoria custom house, of the internal revenue office, of inspection of hulls and boilers, of superintendence of mail transportation, including nearly all the postoffices in the state, of the United States district attorney's office, of the surveyor-general's office, and of miscellaneous departments of the public service too numerous to mention, was all transferred to Salem a month ago. The jubilant Statesman, facing this great "boom" for Salem, exclaims: "After all we are under obligations to 'the only man who ever did anything for Oregon!'"

The whole press of the United States is taking notice of the contest for election of a senator in our state. Already we have reprinted extracts from many respectable journals, all of which sustain the members who refuse to vote for the man whose "very candidacy," as the New York Times expresses it, "is a disgrace to the state." Oregon could not afford to soil her reputation by electing a man of such character, and she will not do it.

A bill designed to protect the salmon industries, prepared by the board of trade, has been introduced in the legislature. It is a proper and timely measure. The interests of the state in the great industry of salmon packing, and of the packers were considered in its preparation, and to both justice was done. There are no good objections to it; and probably no effort will be made to defeat it.

When everybody knows so well what Mitchell's political methods are it is ridiculous enough for him to expend so much energy in denial of all intent to use the federal offices to help himself in his "senatorial fight." DuBois, when he was talking about the marshalship of Washington territory knew what manner of man he was serving.

Certainly as many as three-fourths of the republicans of Yamhill county are earnestly opposed to the election of J. H. Mitchell and yet but one man of the Yamhill delegation stands out against him. Only Mr. Jessup had the manliness to resist the [illegible] and the [illegible] talk of the boss.

From a Republican Standpoint.

The Dalles Times-Mountaineer, a republican paper of good sense and high character, has the following remarks on the situation at Salem:

The last vote taken gives evidence of the senatorial contest resulting in a deadlock, which is much to be deplored, as the time of the legislature will be taken up with useless balloting. It would seem to be the part of patriotism with Mr. Mitchell to resign as a candidate, seeing that he has not the least chance of election, and the continued struggle but tends to dismember his party. As a matter of course this result is desirable to the democrats, as it ensures their success in the future, and it is not surprising they use their utmost endeavors to keep the breach open between the warring factions of the republicans. The eighteen who, from the first, have opposed the election of Mr. Mitchell as United States senator, are men of principles, not to be either bought with bribes or intimidated by threats. They are satisfied that they are carrying out the wishes of their constituents, and with this assurance they are justified in standing as firm as adamant in the position they have taken. As regards Mr. Nichols, the representative from this county, who composes one of this Spartan number, we know that he expressed himself opposed to Mr. Mitchell before his election, and the portion of the county who [illegible] resides, are strong set in the same direction. All of these men have won the approbation of those who elected them, as the late developments at Salem demonstrate the fact that it is a giant effort on the part of the "bosses," the "machine" and corporation power to elect a man suited to their purpose against the urgent protest of the people.

That "National Reputation."

Philadelphia Times.

John Hipple Mitchell, senatorial aspirant before the Oregon legislature, has evidently been reading the life and political achievements of Simon Cameron. A number of republicans have bolted his nomination and have indulged in the [illegible] of independence of voting for another fellow, and if they continue of the same mind as at present Mr. Mitchell's prospects of playing the role of statesman at Washington are very poor, unless he can convince the democrats that the salvation of the country depends upon his election. Having read that three democrats once helped Mr. Cameron out of a similar dilemma, he has undertaken to profit by the aged Pennsylvanian's experience and has found his three democrats. Unfortunately three are not enough in his case, and he isn't elected after all. However, if the reasons that convinced the three haven't completely exhausted Mr. Mitchell's pocket, perhaps he may be able to convince enough others to bring him success. There are some very cheap men in the democratic party.

A Futile Effort in Lane County.

Eugene City Guard.

Three of Mitchell's strikers, all "claiming" to be democrats, were in town this week trying to get the democrats of Lane county to petition the members of the legislature to vote for J. H. Mitchell for U. S. senator. They were informed that all the democrats here were against that individual's election, and most of the republicans. We are informed that they did not succeed in getting the signature of even one democrat. The trio departed the next morning after their arrival, looking very crestfallen.

Position of the Eighteen.

Dallas Itemizer.

The eighteen are likely to remain solid to the end. The revelations that have taken place lately at Salem must prevent any one of them who has a regard for his reputation, from ever yielding his position. To vote for Mitchell now would be fatuitous madness. It is said that these have already hurt their chances for political preferment in the future. If that be so, such a situation is infinitely better than to suffer the imputation which a vote for Mitchell would place them under.

Dismal Indeed.

Dalles Times-Mountaineer.

As the hopes of Mitchell's election become less and less it is piteous to hear the howls of the official pap suckers. It was a "groundhog case" with them, and the animal has disappeared. In their anger they lash themselves into a fury and spit their venom upon all who may come within reach. Even the ex-chairman, who was ousted from his position on the republican committee for arbitrary actions, joins his tones with the others to increase the dismal chorus.

A "National Reputation."

New York Times.

The more independent of the Oregon republicans have refused to abide the action of the caucus. Should they have voted according to strict party rules although his (Mitchell's) reputation was spotted all over and his various aliases were confusing as to his identity? Oregon may be congratulated on its escape from being unworthily represented.

CITY.

[illegible] Lake County.—The measure introduced in the present assembly of Oregon, looking to [illegible] Lake county, seems so far to have [illegible] opposition. The people of West [illegible] to be set apart in a new county, to be [illegible] for the very obvious reason that the [illegible] is entirely too far from many important [illegible] for the transaction, without [illegible] of such business as necessitates their [illegible] at Lakeview. The county of [illegible] hundred miles in length by one [illegible] in width. Lake [illegible] It is seated in the southern [illegible] about fourteen miles [illegible] county, about as many from the [illegible] the greater part of the winter the [illegible] to Lakeview from the more distant [illegible] impassable, rendering it difficult [illegible] the county seat from [illegible] presented by the people to [illegible] effect that a division is necessary. Notable Exhibits.

[illegible] the City Foundry, [illegible] corner of Front and Columbia streets, [illegible] exhibition not only the machinery [illegible] engine that propelled all the other machinery [illegible] in the pavilion, but they had many other articles, among which was a [illegible] (25 horse power) as well as [illegible] The firm of J. Honeyman & Co. is composed of four members, father and three sons. In the year 1862 Mr. J. H. Honeyman, the father of J. A., W. B. and R. F. Honeyman, started a small foundry, and within a few months was burned out in the great fire of 1872. The sons at that time were quite young, but the old gentleman who had worked so long with iron that his blood was full of that important material, and which it appears he has transmitted to his sons, was not to be thwarted in his purpose even by the consuming flames, soon had another business under way. Mr. Honeyman, technically, or by trade, is a moulder, as is his second son, W. B., while J. A., the oldest, and R. F., the youngest, are machinists. It is an old adage, "Every man to his trade;" but while this old adage may hold out as a rule, like most other rules there are exceptions. J. Honeyman & Co. are exceptions to the rule, for either one of the firm, while they claim specialties as their trades, can conduct either department of the foundry business. While it is true that this firm are prepared to and in condition to do every kind of foundry work known to the business. Some idea may be formed of their business when we say that the grounds occupied by the City Foundry occupies nearly an entire block, and the pay-roll shows that they have 47 employes, making a constant force of 51 men.

If our space would admit of it, we are reminded that a valuable lesson in connection with this firm could be written, not only to show what may be accomplished when there is a will, but to show the advantage to the country at large by encouraging manufacturers in our midst. We will chance a few more lines: 50 men at $3 per day earn $154; and for 26 days—one month—we have $3,904, or for one year we find $46,848. This sum is saved to the state; it is not sent east. These 51 employes are nearly all men of families. They invest in property; pay taxes, support schools, etc.

The tug boiler referred to above as having been one-third [illegible] was sold Saturday to a firm east of the mountains and will be shipped immediately.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

The betrothal of Ludwig Levi and Miss Rosa Durkheimer is announced.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Birmingham returned by the last's steamer from a visit in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. B. McCracken left by the Columbia Saturday night for San Francisco, where they will reside in future.

Mrs. T. J. McCarver and family of Oregon City, left by the Columbia en route to St. Joseph, Missouri, where they will probably remain.

Judge P. P. Prim, who has been in this city since Saturday, was quite ill yesterday, but will try to go up to the capital to-day. His ailments were so severe as to require the attendance of a physician.

Last night Mr. Samuel Baden, a well-known merchant formerly of Canyonville, now of The Dalles, was married to Miss Lena Ach. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's mother.

On Thursday of this week, Mr. C. C. Gridley of Vancouver will be married to Miss Minnie Hathaway, daughter of Hon. M. R. Hathaway of that city. The couple will remain here until the following Monday.

Mr. Charles T. Hyde, for the past five years in the office of Whalley, Fechheimer & Bech, leaves this morning for Baker City, where he will take charge of the legal business of his brother, Hon. T. C. Hyde, who was elected prosecuting attorney of the fifth district last June. He will remain there at least two years. His friends here—and they are numbered by hundreds—will watch his career with interest.

THE LIPPITT-SELLING WEDDING.

Last night, Mr. Julius Lippitt of the firm of Lippitt Bros., Colfax, W. T., and Miss Gussina B. Selling, eldest daughter of Mr. J. Selling, of Oregon City, were married. The ceremony, which took place at the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. P. Selling, corner Tenth and Main streets, was performed by Rev. Mr. Bories, and was witnessed by only the relatives of the couple. The bride is a favorite at the Falls City, and equally popular among numerous friends here, and the groom is one of the successful, honorable merchants of Washington territory. They were literally overwhelmed with rich and handsome gifts. To better accommodate the hundred or more guests, a reception was held in Turn Hall, beginning at 8 o'clock and lasting till past midnight. Under well directed and attentive efforts of the family of Mr. P. Selling, the evening was made most enjoyable to all.

While He and Policeman Holtgrieve Were Conveying Two Thieves to Prison.

From the Sunday Oregonian.

Policeman James Barry was shot about [illegible] last night while he and Policeman Holtgrieve [illegible] two thieves who they were conveying to the station. The two thieves, who were arrested on charge of stealing a case of cigars from M. J. [illegible] last Tuesday evening. Information was received at police headquarters as to the whereabouts of the thieves, and Policemen Barry and Holtgrieve went to make the arrest. The criminals were found in a [illegible] bakery, on Third street, between [illegible] and Morrison. [illegible] [illegible] Barry [illegible] [illegible] the latter's right arm being free, [illegible] three times, the first shot [illegible] the Policeman's [illegible] arm, [illegible] [illegible] and ran away, followed [illegible] at which place the officer lost sight of him. Holtgrieve's prisoner, at the time of the shooting, made a desperate struggle to get free, and the officer with difficulty prevented his escape. He is a [illegible] character known as "[illegible]" [illegible]

He had been in [illegible] at two o'clock this morning.

Barry's wound is a very painful one, but from Dr. Glisan, who was summoned, it was learned that he was resting with reasonable comfort last night. As the prisoner reached for his pistol, Barry discovered the suspicious movement and closed with him. The former, however, succeeded in getting the revolver and, reaching round the officer, shot him in the arm, the ball passing through the joint and cutting off a portion of the elbow. The arm may be saved, but the probabilities are it will be permanently [illegible]

ENDED IN DEATH.

JACK VINSON ARRESTED FOR KILLING JOHN WESTFAHL.

A Shooting Affray Several Months Ago Between Brothers-in-Law at Toledo Terminates Fatally.

Shortly before twelve o'clock last night, Jack Vinson, who lives at the corner of First and Hall streets, was arrested for having taken the life of his brother-in-law, John Westfahl. The affray occurred about eight months ago at Toledo, Clarke county, W. T., and began from petty bickerings which grew into a feud. Vinson was accused, falsely, so he says, of having uttered language reflecting on the character of his mother-in-law, and Westfahl declared her good name. The latter, it is stated, made threats on Vinson's life, and when they met at Toledo, Vinson shot him twice, one ball entering the nose and the second penetrating the cheek. Ordinarily, was never extracted. Vinson was arrested, confined for a while in the jail at Vancouver, and afterwards released on bail. Shortly after he removed to this city with his family.

About three weeks ago Westfahl visited his father in Washington county, but being seriously troubled with the old wounds, started for his old home at Toledo. He sank so rapidly as not to get farther than Portland, and was taken to the residence of Capt. Orin Kellogg, on Second street, between Hall and Harrison, where he died at half-past ten last night, and Chief of Police Lappeus was notified by District Attorney Bloomfield, of Vancouver, to hold Vinson in case of Westfahl's death, and the arrest was made in obedience to this request.

To an OREGONIAN reporter who saw him at the city jail, Vinson said that the shooting was a clear case of self-defense, and that he would have no trouble in proving it. Westfahl was a steamboat man and farmer. Vinson is a farmer and stock-raiser and is well known throughout Oregon and Washington. He and Westfahl married sisters.

The youngest child of Col. John McCracken was severely scalded one day last week.

Clarence Simpson, who shot and wounded William Shattuck in East Portland last week, was arrested and taken before Justice Bullock, where he waived examination and gave bonds for his appearance before the grand jury.

Saturday morning Harry Ott, second mate of the American ship Dauntless, of Stonington, Conn., was found dead in the room of Mary Ann Daily, a cyprian in Centennial block. The coroner was notified and held an inquest, the verdict being that death resulted from natural causes. A post mortem examination showed heart disease to have been the cause of death. Ott had a family in Stonington.

A Plain Duty.

Mitchell has lost his battle. The opposition to him is not going to yield, while his own support is weakening. The loss of Dr. Plummer represents more than his single vote. His defection carries with it a moral weight, as he is known to be a man of high mind and conservative judgment. Mr. Eakin, of Lane, is possibly the first of several who will follow the "bell wether" away from their present shepherd to new pastures and other leaders. If Mitchell can see the result as plainly as it appears to others, there is only one course open to him. He must get out of the way while there shall yet remain some grace in the act. The "thirty-six" may remain true to him, and receive support in it, the "eighteen" may stand solid and obtain praise; but the cold deliberation of the people is not going to hold them guiltless if he pushes stubbornly and hardness, not to say persistence, to the point of a fruitless obstinacy. It may be fairly contended that it is the duty of a member, having participated in a caucus, to stand by the caucus nominee. It never can be justly contended that that nominee himself should claim the allegiance of his followers when their loyalty can effect no good to him and only harm to themselves, their party and their state. Whatever doubt may exist as to the duty of any member, none at all can exist as to the duty of Mr. Mitchell. He should step down and out. If he wants to carry the matter of his candidacy to the people, this is his privilege two years hence. For the present the most graceful act he can do is to make his bow and retire.

Thanksgiving in Mississippi.

Governor Lowry of Mississippi has issued a proclamation appointing Thursday, the 14th instant, as a day of special thanksgiving in that state. He says: "Blessings so signal and abundant have been vouchsafed to us as a state and people, that a special recognition of the same is appropriate and right. The grain products of our fields have never been more plentiful, assuring the poorest against want, giving seed to the sower and bread to the eater. Other crops promise a bountiful harvest. Peace has reigned in all our borders, and prosperity has crowned the labors of our hands. Pestilence has kept far from our dwellings, while the health of the people has been graciously preserved. Though losses and calamity came upon our citizens along our great river by the devastating floods, yet they have been largely sweetened and sanctified by national sympathy and relief. For all these, homage should be gratefully rendered to the Father of Lights from whom cometh every good and every perfect gift."

The Tribune's tells us that Indiana will soon have a cabinet officer. Thomas J. Brady is, we presume, the man. He is, at any rate, better fitted for the place than John C. New. We do not want to criticise the administration. We wish it well. We hope for improvement. But when it commits itself to the lobbyist's revel in the case of Conkling, it makes a sort of blunder that must be noticed.

MONDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 9, 1882.

BETWEEN TWO CITIES.

Portland to Mexico.

V.

The road was horrible beyond all description, but the beauty of the region paid for much discomfort. We rode over a succession of ridges and traversed broad intervals covered with immense fields of waving maize. About midnight of this day the stage suddenly stopped in a deep mud hole and we fell asleep to be awakened in an hour by the noise of unhitching the mules and putting ten oxen in their place, which soon snaked us out of the mud and set us on the hill top.

I learned that one must not be gracious to the common people of this country; and I had made the same discovery in South America. I wonder if it is the same thing at home? I don't remember to have noticed it, but I presume we have the streak. I mean, that if you treat them with a little show of kindness they at once want favors of you. Here a gentle word to a working man brings a request for a "loan of four reals" (50 cents). But pat an ill-bred dog on the head, and no matter if he be an American dog or of the Mexican sort, he'll jump on you with his dirty paws.

A Peruvian under the circumstances, would ask you to give him a real (a bit). At about 8, on the morning of the 14th, we reached La Venta, where after 27 hours of severe staging, we were glad to have a wash, a bowl of bread and milk and a bed at 6000 feet above the sea.

This property had been given by Hernan do Cortez to his friend Rodrigo Frias, more than 300 years ago. It is a venerable looking pile though with only three centuries on its head, and boasts of its arched corridors about the tropic garden in the court yard; its grotesque blackened wood carvings in the great rooms and the battlements for muskets along the line of roof.

I had to remain here 24 hours and was taken in hand by one of those stupid youngsters of whom I have before spoken, who possessed the added accomplishment of being a religious fanatic.

He informed me that Masonry is a dreadful institution and had caused the ruin of the republic. He said the present government is in the hands of Masons, the holy church is abased and the reverend fathers counted for nothing. I tried to comfort him by telling him it seemed to me the "reverend fathers" counted for a good deal, since each one endeavored to have as many families as he could well support and rather more children than any other father in his parish, who, indeed, had to provide for their own and his also.

He asked knowingly, "What do you think the best faith?"

I said, "For you, the one you like best."

"But don't you think the holy Roman apostolic faith the true church?"

"Yes, for those who believe it."

"Do you believe it?"

"Is this a free country?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, this is a republic."

"Thanks; then I'll take the liberty of believing what I please, with your permission."

"Are you a Mason?" he pursued.

"I am," I answered, and crying out "Por Dios" he ran off up the street.

As we got farther from the Pacific coast we seem to be getting farther from civilization. The number of beggars augments, and when we pass through Jalos they crowded so fiercely around the stage as to become an intolerable nuisance.

Here, as everywhere else, beggars and churches in [illegible] appear to be the measure of each other. The laws of the republic forbid the clergy to appear on the street in a distinctive garb; but in so remote communities public sentiment is so strong in affection for the old church that the "reverend fathers" go as they please. In all such communities the beggars abound, whether in North or South America.

We passed to-day through San Juan de Lagos (St. John of the lakes); the approach to which is very fine. The road for a league runs along a ridge overlooking the town, and then descends upon the lower plain by one of those elaborated zigzags for which Spanish roads are famous; a road well paved and protected, like that of Tequila, with parapets in masonry on the lower side. It may easily be believed that the road is in every respect well made, when you find a ten-mule team swinging a stage down around the turns on a trot.

At Lagos, further on, where we passed the night, we found the best table we had yet encountered in Mexico.

An excellent French cook had established himself there, and, though his rooms and beds were not well kept, his table was capital and the "change of symptoms" thereby experienced, agreeable.

Here, too, the priests and the beggars raged. The latter came out in the morning as the stage team was being hitched up, and ranged themselves along the sunny side of the street like nasty blue-bottle flies on the wall; they had come to waylay the passengers. "Give us this day our daily stranger."

It is "independence day" in Mexico—the 15th of September—and already the bands have begun to parade the streets. On the whole, it beats everything in the way of music that I have yet seen outside an orchestra. There are two fifes and a little snare drum, a clarionet and a flute, a harp, a big bass drum, a middle-sized fiddle and four little fiddles, and five or six cornets. Behind these passed a row of five or six cornets, whose duty seemed to be to spell the others, for I didn't hear them toot while the others were playing.

How glad I was to reach Leon at noon or later. It had been the most fatiguing stage that I had known in this little life of mine. But now I had got into the big city of Central America, into a comfortable hotel with a good landlady and a pleasant household at table.

I had five days to rest in Leon, and needed them. Dona Felipa gave me a room on the second floor facing the Plaza de Armas, which gave a fine view of the exhibition there, in the evening, of illumination and fireworks. The plaza is densely shaded, with trees and surrounded by an iron fence, which seemed on this occasion a fence of fire, while variously colored Chinese lanterns (why Chinese, seeing they are made in Leon) were hung among the branches in the little forest, and the central fountain was surrounded with gas jets, giving a thought of fairy land to the place.

On the left, and extending about a full half side of the plaza, is the municipal "palace"—all city halls, state houses and capitols in Spanish-American republics are palaces—and this building was elaborately illuminated from base to parapet and higher. The bands of the regiments stationed here made the air lively, and the hundreds of ladies in full dress, even to white satin slippers, who promenaded the veredas about the plaza, gave a luxury of comfort after that horrible stage ride, that was restful, if it was exciting.

After the pyrotechnic display began, I remembered the Fourth of July in Portland, and did not feel proud of my home on account of fireworks. There was no pyrotechnic "professor" here in Leon, and no swindling. If the city council of my beloved city of Portland had let the contract for this exhibition in Leon it would have cost five thousand good American dollars. In Leon it cost three hundred and seventy-five dollars. This display was more artistic in composition, and the papers were more fairly filled. There is good reason for this fact: our people are "green" in the matter of fireworks and the art which became game for any speculator in the art who drops along about the fourth of July. In all Catholic countries rockets play a great part in festivals, and as everybody has his "Santo" to be celebrated pyrotechnically, with more or less display, according to his means or popularity, the people become judges of the article and its cost; and, indeed nearly every common laborer in these countries becomes an adept in the manufacture, requiring only the aid of some artistic ability in arrangement and composition of pieces.

Later in the night there was a banquet and a grand ball, and all those fine things were said and done that may be expected from a patriotic and polite people.

Leon has stolen the prestige from Guadalajara by sheer force of enterprise and energy. It is, doubtless, a more healthy site for a town and it has had the fortune to attract capital and excite manufactures by offering facilities that sleepy old Guadalajara felt too secure to think of paying with. The result is that Leon has now a population of a hundred and thirty to fifty thousand, having doubled in twenty years while Guadalajara has gone down to a second rate position in that time.

With all its enterprise, Leon is famous for its fanaticism. It is true the clergy no longer promenade the streels in clerical costume but, as they are recognized, the common people fall on their knees and kiss their hands or their cloaks as they pass.

The sound of church bells appears to be incessant, an exceptional fact in Mexico, where the state is no longer national, and all religions are tolerated.

But, to the credit of the American continent, in no other Spanish state of the American continent are the church clocks regulated to keep time. It seems a little thing to notice, and not worth mentioning, but it carries a good deal with it, more than at first appears.

In these countries of America, where the state protects the clergy, they are a large horde of beggars and thieves. This sounds like strong language, but every word of it is well weighed and accurately true.

In Mexico the parishes support as many as and no more clergymen than they require for the order of society. The result is, in the main, that one finds in this republic a better class of men in morality and intelligence in the profession, than in any other of these countries. The black sheep have many of them [illegible] to Central American states, notably now, to Costa Rica, where Tomas Guardia affects the church, because he fears the people.

But I was saying that the church clocks keep time here, and that this is not an insignificant fact. It indicated that the clergy were not trusted to take care of public interests, and that Mexicans have learned something of the value of time; two steps forward, more than steps, leaps in the progress of civilization.

As Leon is a manufacturing town it contains a large operative population, which has come in from other parts of the republic. As one sees in all these countries, when the children emigrate they take the old folks along, and these are at once fastened on the community as beggars. They are able to work, but not to beg, when they would otherwise be [illegible] to waste time, so they prowl about the streets looking for prey and making a well dressed stranger's life as uncomfortable as possible. It seems to me there does not exist in the world a city so fearfully infested by the vice of beggars as this pretty Leon.

While I listened to the clamor of the church bells in Leon, I found myself asking why there is so little music in Spanish bells. Does any one know? Is a set of Spanish chimes? Every Spanish church and every church in Spanish America boasts its tower or towers full of things called bells, a collection of every sort of vessel in which a noise can be made. Cast-off cast-iron frying pans, old stove burners and broken tin pans appear to be most in demand. In the City of Mexico, as in a few other capitals, there are some sonorously toned bells that merit the name, but they are the exceptions. As to chimes, I don't remember a Spanish set even in Madrid.

If there be such a thing, will nobody kindly make it known. But the bells of Spanish churches are for making a noise and not for ringing. A small crowd of boys are perched up in the bell tower with hammers, and at the proper signal fall to beating the bells in the most energetically spiteful manner possible.

Every boy has one duty before him. If he would have the divine favor, as he understands it, and that is to get more noise out of his bell than any other boy, and he does it.

When there's a feast day, and every house that can afford it has invested in sky rockets or Indian crackers, and these are fired off at all hours [illegible]

the bells, the thunder and sawmills and din of every lunatic asylum! There is but one way to account for it all. Spanish saints and gods are hard of hearing, or given to oversleeping.

When I say "Spanish" in this connection, it will of course be understood that I speak of the Spanish Roman Catholic church, which has been planted here, and which remains strictly Spanish, whatever the body of believers may be.

There is a comparatively trifling white population in Leon, the mass of the community being Indians or mestizos.

After all, what is a Spaniard? To speak of Spaniards and the blood of the age of Cortes seems to me almost as infinite as to call a native of the United States an American, considering that he is likely to be Irish, German, English, African or anything else you please.

Accordingly, you find all over Mexico the type of the Moorish Jew, the Algerine and the Arab, and their moral characteristics among those who call themselves Spanish families.

In Leon and in Guadalajara I saw the first indications that which make the Mexicans a nation of artists. All the street trades of the country—all the national types of races—are reproduced in wax and clay in miniature with a rigor and truthfulness of expression by the common people that was marvelous. One of the prettiest works are the pictures in feathers, the birds of the country or cards by means of feathers instead of paints.

OREGON LEGISLATURE.

Senate.

SALEM, Oct. 7.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment; all present. Prayer was offered by Rev. Nesbet of the Baptist church.

The journal of yesterday was read and approved.

Starkweather, from the committee on engrossed bills, reported S. B. 2, to regulate transportation of passengers and freight by railroad corporations, as correctly engrossed.

A communication was received stating that the governor had signed S. B. 51, to incorporate Eugene city.

The president announced that he had signed S. B. 23, to change the time of the meeting of the legislature; S. B. 82, to provide the time and places of holding the circuit court in the first judicial district; S. B. 74, to incorporate the town of Buena Vista; and S. B. 25, to amend corporation laws of Ashland.

On motion of Lee, S. B. 144 to prevent the spread of contagious diseases among sheep, was taken up. Read second time, considered, engrossed and placed on its final passage. Passed.

On motion of Hirsch, the rules were suspended and S. B. 87, to incorporate the city of Portland, was taken up and read a second time by title. Rules were further suspended, the bill considered, engrossed and placed on its final passage. Pending reading of this bill further reading was suspended and on motion of Hirsch the senate, under suspension of rules, took S. B. 3, to grant right of way to Oregon Short-line Railway. Passed.

The hour of 12 M. having arrived, the senate adjourned to the hall of the house to vote for U. S. senator. After returning senate adjourned until Monday at 11 A. M.

House.

Mr. Tanner rose to a question of privilege, and asked for information from the speaker regarding his status on the investigating committee; he (Mr. T.) supposing that he would hold the position of chairman, but that the committee had elected another to occupy that position.

The speaker ruled that the question of who should be chairman, was a matter for the committee to determine, and not this house; that it was customary for the first named on the committee to act as chairman, unless it was differently ordered by the committee.

Leave of absence was asked for Mr. Hayes till Monday, 2 P. M., by Mr. [illegible], and for Mr. Carter till 12 M. on Monday, by Mr. Nichols; granted.

On motion of Mr. Sharp, the reading of the journal was dispensed with.

Mr. Jones asked permission to withdraw H. B. No. 135; granted.

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE.

S. J. M. No. 2—Reported as passed and correctly enrolled.

Reporting the passage of H. B. No. 122, with amendments, to define the boundary line between Coos and Curry counties, house concurred.

Also, that S. B. 5 had passed, defining how real property shall be taxed. Read first and second time and referred to committee on counties.

Also H. B. 68, with amendments adopted, ordered engrossed and read third time on Monday at 2 P. M.

Also, bill to amend charter of Albany; read first and second time, and referred to committee of three from Linn county.

Also passage of S. C. R. 5, urging favorable action by congress in favor of Nicaragua canal.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Internal improvements—H. B. 36 with an amendment, for destruction of coyotes. Recommitted to special committee of one from each county.

Also H. B. 68 with amendments, recommending passage. Referred to a special committee.

Committee on public lands introduced H. B. 157, amending general laws relative to school lands. Read first time.

Rules were suspended and returned to introduction of bills: 158, [illegible]; 159, Webb; 160, [illegible]; 161, Smith; 162, Carter; 163, Jones (empowering secretary of state to compile taxes and apportion same among counties in state). Read first time.

Senate entered at 12 M. for purpose of holding

JOINT CONVENTION.

Rolls called; all present except Dunbar and Dorris. Proceeded to cast ballot: Mitchell, 36; Shattuck, 27; McBride, 1; Fading, 2; Rubard Williams 10; Geo. H. Williams 4; Dunbar and Hayes paired. Simon and Dorris paired.

Adjourned, senate retiring; house adjourned till 11 A. M. Monday.

SYNOD OF THE COLUMBIA.

THIRD DAY, OCTOBER 7.

Synod convened at 9 A. M., and engaged in devotional exercises for half an hour led by Rev. R. Rope.

Roll was called and the minutes of Friday read and approved.

Rev. D. O. Ghormley of the presbytery of Bellefontaine, Ohio, was invited to sit as a corresponding member.

The committee on publication of minutes of synod for 1881, made their report. It was referred to committee on treasurer's accounts.

The request of the board of home missions to have a synodical committee appointed to have general supervision of the mission work within the bounds of the synod, who shall meet and act prior to the meetings of the synod and make recommendations, etc., was referred to the committee appointed to revise standing committees.

The committee appointed to examine the records of the presbyteries of Idaho, Oregon and Puget Sound, reported recommending the approval of the records. The report was adopted.

The committee on members of general assembly made their report and it was adopted.

The reasons assigned by the stated clerk for failure in forwarding the records of the synod to the last general assembly were sustained and ordered to be entered upon the minutes.

Rev. J. R. Thompson on behalf of W. B Honeyman, Esq., president of the Mechanics' Fair association, tendered an invitation to the members of the synod and their lady friends to visit the Mechanics' Fair in a body this evening. On motion the kind invitation was accepted and a vote of thanks tendered Mr. Honeyman.

At 12 o'clock the synod adjourned till 2 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Synod convened at 2 P. M. and was opened with prayer by Rev. W. A. [illegible].

The committee on home missions, Indian missions and church erection, presented their annual report, which was accepted, and certain recommendations of the committee were referred to committee appointed to revise the standing committees of synod.

Whereas, all the work among the Indian tribes within our bounds ought to be under the control of one board of our church; therefore,

Resolved, That the board of foreign missions be requested to transfer such tribes as are under its care to the care of the board of home missions.

The resolution was laid over until next meeting of synod.

Rev. George Ross read the "Narrative of the State of Religion in the Churches." The report was adopted.

Rev. H. P. Dunning read a very interesting and instructive report from the committee on foreign missions. The report was accepted, and Rev. E. N. Condit offered the following resolutions, which were adopted:

Resolved (first), That the synod has listened with interest and edification to the able report just submitted by Rev. H. P. Dunning.

Resolved (second), That at the earliest practicable time each minister of this body in charge of a church be requested to present to his congregation this report, making such comments as may in his judgment seem necessary.

Rev. A. Adair offered a resolution commendatory of the monthly magazine issued by the foreign mission board stating that it contained some of the most thrilling narratives of adventures and dangers encountered by foreign missionaries, travel ever been [illegible] privilege to read, and urging pastors of churches to aid in its circulation.

Rev. T. M. Boyd, on behalf of the church at Walla Walla, invited synod to meet there next year.

Rev. J. R. Thompson consented to a reconsideration of the vote accepting the invitation from Olympia, as on reflection, he found that the Washington territory legislature would be in session at that place, and accommodations for members of synod perhaps limited. The vote in favor of Olympia was reconsidered and the invitation from Walla Walla accepted.

The following resolution, presented by Rev. M. W. Hill, was adopted:

Whereas, A sanctified press is one of the most powerful agents for the cultivation of character and the spread of the gospel.

Resolved, That we cheerfully and gladly bear testimony to the worth of the monthly issued by the board of home missions, and commend it to all our congregations for their support; expressing our earnest wish that a copy may find its way to every family.

The committee appointed to revise the permanent committees of synod, reported and recommended the following:

Home Missions—Rev. E. N. Condit, Rev. T. M. Boyd, Rev. J. R. Thompson, Elder C. C. Strong, Elder S. Condit.

Indian Missions—Rev. A. L. Lindsley, D. D., Rev. [illegible], Elder Gen. R. H. Milroy, Rev. [illegible]

Foreign Missions—Rev. H. P. Dunning, Rev. John Reid, Sr., Elder R. K. Warren.

Education—Rev. E. R. Geary, D. D., Rev. James Thompson, Elder A. W. Stow.

Freedmen—Rev. T. Brouillette, Rev. A. [illegible], Elder E. E. Ford.

The report was adopted.

The following resolution was introduced and unanimously adopted:

Whereas, During many years the late executive committee of our synod has watched over our interests in the north-west, and in every way advanced the growth and welfare of the Master's kingdom, laboring with great zeal and efficiency; therefore, be it

CORRUPTION AT SALEM.

To Major James Bruce, of Washington County, Who Makes a Complete Disclosure Under Oath—DuBois Denies.

SALEM, Saturday, Oct. 7.

Major James Bruce, member of the house of representatives, from Washington county, appeared before the investigating committee, this morning, and under oath testified as follows:

Am 54 years old; a representative from Washington county.

Q.—(By Mr. Hon. Thompson) Major Bruce, state whether or not you have had any conversation with any person in which any offers or inducements have been made to you for the purpose of influencing your vote on the senatorial question; and if so state with whom and when such conversation occurred.

A.—I have had conversations with two persons, the first was with Chas. DuBois, a week ago last Sunday or Monday; not positive which day.

Q.—State whether you had known DuBois before that time, and if so, how long.

A.—I met DuBois in 1876, I think, the first time. I met him first in Portland and afterwards in San Francisco, and crossed the plains with him to Philadelphia. We were together more or less all through the centennial exposition. I have met him frequently since.

Q.—State where your conversation with Mr. DuBois occurred, the circumstances under which it occurred, and give a detailed statement of the conversation itself.

A.—Mr. DuBois was sitting in a chair on the north side of the Chemeketa hotel, out of doors. I was walking past and he said "Take a seat, I want to talk to you." I remarked to him that I was getting tired of being bored and that I didn't want to talk. Mr. DuBois said that he didn't want to bore me, but wanted to talk about old times, and ask me when we were in Philadelphia together. I sat down by him and but very few words had passed between us when he spoke of the senatorial contest. I immediately rose and said that I had had enough of that. He rose at the same time and stated that Mr. Mitchell wanted me to vote for him; that my vote would elect him. I asked him how he knew that my vote would elect Mitchell and he said that Mitchell said that it would. During this conversation we were walking across toward the north from the Chemeketa. Just as we got across the street somebody hailed him as we got across the other street. DuBois turned coming east across the other street, and told the man that he would be there presently. I said to DuBois, "go now, I want no more talk with you about this matter." DuBois said to me, "Bruce, it is not agreeable to me to talk to you on this matter, but Mitchell said to me, 'why can't you.'" Mr. DuBois continued: "Bruce, will that Mr. Kelly had told him that I had stated that he had offered me the marshalship of Washington territory, and if I had made that statement, I had stated what was false. I told him that I had made the statement under oath and knew what I was saying and that it was true." DuBois remarked that if I had sworn to talk to him (Bruce) and use your influence with him if you are old friends!" He then remarked, "there is no use for you in voting for Mitchell then for any other man. You can have the marshalship of Washington territory, which is worth $20,000." I then left him and this was the end of our conversation at that time. Now I would like to state a conversation which I had with DuBois this morning. That he knew it was not correct and that I knew it too. I will state this, that since that conversation at the Chemeketa I have occasionally met DuBois, and he has asked me, "Bruce, what are you mad at me about?" I said to him that I was not mad at him, but didn't propose to be bored by him any more. That is all the conversation I remember to have had with DuBois about that matter.

Q.—Where did the conversation this morning occur?

A.—It was in the hall of the house at the entrance of the bar.

Mr. Thompson here asked the witness to give the circumstances of the other attempt to influence his vote, indicated by his first answer, but before he could do so the committee adjourned. DuBois will be called this evening, and I have it from him that his testimony will directly contradict that of Bruce. As to the Washington territory marshalship, he says in the most positive manner that he never mentioned that affair in any conversation with Bruce. Thus another question of veracity is opened.

THE PROTECTION OF SALMON.

Appeal to the Legislature by the Board of Trade—Damage to the Bar by Fish Nets.

The board of trade has had prepared a bill for an act to regulate salmon fisheries on the waters of the Columbia river and its tributaries, in connection with which we beg leave to refer you to the following extract from the annual address of the president of the board:

"In view of the alarming decrease of the run of salmon in the Columbia river, I deem it of imperative necessity that immediate action should be taken, either by the general government or the state of Oregon, looking to the artificial propagation of this valuable food fish. The salmon in the river were noticeably less in number this year than last, and whilst the example of the Sacramento river shows that artificial propagation may be confidently relied on to keep up and even increase the supply, it also shows that it takes some years for the young fish to attain maturity, and enable us to reap the benefits of artificial propagation. During last winter the Oregon and Washington fish-propagating company tendered their hatchery on the Clackamas river to the United States, provided the government would carry it on. Their own funds were exhausted, hence the offer. If the government will not do the work, I believe the legislature of the state should take it up. The importance of the salmon industry to the state of Oregon may be seen from the following figures: The catch of 1881 amounted to 550,000 cases, worth in first hands $2,750,000. There is invested in canneries and their appliances upon the Columbia $2,000,000 in capital. The fishing season lasts four months, during which there are employed about 7,000 men, whose wages for the season aggregate $1,500,000. The general government receives in duties on tin plate, lead, etc., used in packing the fish, about $10,000 annually.

"The importance of preserving such an industry is paramount, and I earnestly hope that our public men may appreciate the gravity of the situation, and make proper provision for the protection and propagation of the salmon. A well drawn and practical law to prevent the indiscriminate slaughter of salmon, by fish wheels and other murderous devices is urgently needed. The length of the fishing season should also be regulated by law, the fishing the year when fishing is prohibited, and the duration of the weekly close times, should be so clearly and unequivocally expressed as to afford no room for misunderstanding, and render the aid of the state's attorney in securing the conviction of the violators of the law less arduous than at present. The legislature of Washington territory should also pass laws similar to those of Oregon, thus preventing the law breakers of one community seeking safety by flight into the jurisdiction of the other."

The bill which we now present, and for which we ask your good offices, has been framed by able counsel, after consultation with some of the principal salmon packers upon the river.

Its first section provides that it shall be unlawful to fish below or westward of a line drawn from the flag-staff at Fort Stevens to the top of Scarborough hill. This section is of the greatest importance, and is inserted for the protection of the ship channel across the Columbia bar. The sand of which the Columbia bar is composed is exceedingly light, and the dragging of nets across its surface has so filled up the channel that there is now less draft of water therein than at any time for the past thirty years.

Upon enquiry of the United States engineer, Capt. Charles F. Powell, in charge of the improvement of the Columbia river, he informed us that fishing on the bar, below Sand Island was first practiced extensively in 1879. Its effect at once became apparent. In 1879 the depth of water in the principal channel was 22 feet; in 1880 it had decreased to 21 feet; in 1881 to 20 feet, and at present it is only 19 feet. During the season of 1882 there were from 500 to 700 boats fishing upon the bar, and fears are entertained that the channel may be entirely closed if a stop is not put to this practice.

The United States government has lately appointed a board of engineers which has lately examined the Columbia bar, with a view to its permanent improvement; but it is useless to expect the government to expend large sums in providing a good and sufficient channel, unless we, on our part, pass proper laws for its protection and thus show an appreciation of the benefit bestowed.

The other sections of the bill are clear, practical and concise, and will commend themselves to all who desire the good of the state and the protection of this great industry.

In conclusion, we earnestly and most respectfully ask your aid in securing the passage of the bill, which we deem of the greatest importance to the welfare of the state.

Yours very sincerely,

DONALD MACLEAY, President.

F. K. ARNOLD, Secretary.

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease. He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as Spermatorrhea, or Seminal Weakness, or Loss of Perfect Virility. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring either directly or indirectly from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have diffidency in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down, and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

John Brown's Body.

Dr. Jarvis T. Johnson of Martinsville, Ind., gives the following account of how he came into possession of the body of one of John Brown's sons:

I was the surgeon of the Twenty-seventh Regiment of Indiana Volunteers in the war of 1861, and served in that capacity during the years of 1861 and 1862. In the spring of 1862, General Banks' division moved up the valley of the Shenandoah, and entered the city of Winchester, Va. My regiment was a part of the said division. After we had entered the city I took possession of the medical college situated therein. In the museum of said college I found a large, electrical and anatomical human body or frame. It had been well prepared for preservation, and contained all the muscles, arteries and nerves. By permission of General Banks, I took charge of the specimen and removed it to the Academy hospital in Winchester, which hospital was under my control. After its removal to the said hospital, a number of the prominent citizens of Winchester called upon me at the hospital, and each and all declared that it was the remains of a son of John Brown; that the said son had been killed at Harper's Ferry, Va., in October 1859, at the time of the insurrection.

One of the professors of the said college also called upon me in person and requested that I return the specimen. He then gave me all the details of the manner in which the body had been prepared, and said that he did it himself. He told me that after young Brown was killed at Harper's Ferry, he had the body taken to Winchester, and then, upon consultation with the other professors of the college, it was decided to prepare the body of young Brown that it might be preserved in the museum of the college, as a specimen and an object of interest. The professor strongly appealed to me, in the name of my profession and in the interest of the same, and as a friend of science, to return to him the body. He said that when the war was over the college, which had been burned, would be rebuilt, and that he would have it deposited therein. He stated that the sons of John Brown had been killed while engaged with their father in an attempt to overthrow Virginia's cherished institution of slavery, and the college was entitled to the body as an object of warning and curiosity. In answer to his demand and appeals of the professor I said that the memory of John Brown and his sons and their acts at Harper's Ferry for the freedom of the slaves were held in too high esteem for me to leave the body upon the soil of Virginia, hence I would take it to the free soil of my own state. I afterwards, in the summer of 1862, shipped the said body to Franklin, Ind., that point being the nearest express office to my residence at Morgantown, Morgan county, and the said specimen is now in my possession and under my control, and I have no doubt but that it is the son of the John Brown. I would have notified the widow or brothers of young Brown that I had the body in my possession but for the reason that I was aware of the fact that there was a controversy, and feared that the insane mother might simply add to the mental anguish which I knew she had endured about the [illegible] years past. It was not until I saw in the papers that it was contemplated to rear a monument to the memory of her husband, and hearing nothing of the remains of her son, I determined to write to the Tribune and make public [illegible]. I have never tried to [illegible], but have always talked freely in regard to the matter, and several years ago our local paper published an article in relation to the body being in my possession. I now freely and without any price or reward, surrender the body to John Brown, Jr., in order that it may be interred in free soil, and all that I have been the means of preserving it for that purpose.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

In the cities of Venice and Amsterdam there are 7304 bridges.

It is said that alcohol equal to that made from grain can be produced from acorns.

The city of Ottawa has expended $85,700 on electric lights, which, after all, have proved a failure.

Richmond, Va., has a debt of $4,711,707.65, on which she pays an annual interest of $303,[illegible].

Of 1000 ounces of healthy human blood 781.5 ounces consist of water and 218.5 ounces consist of solid matter.

Twelve perpendicular feet of water are annually evaporated from the surface of the Red Sea between Nubia and Arabia.

An old Philadelphia druggist says that no soda water dealer can use genuine syrups and charge less than ten cents a glass.

All solid bodies become self-luminous at about the same temperature, beginning to show a dull light at about 1000 degrees.

The greatest pressure of a steam boiler is at the bottom. The water adds one pound pressure for every twenty-seven inches depth.

It is said that 4,000,000 bushels of sweet potatoes will be raised in Georgia this season, and how to dispose of the crop is a problem.

Furnaces in Germany are now being encased in silk, which is found to be a much better non-conductor of heat than felt, and no more expensive.

About twenty tons of old iron composed of rolls, skulls and salamanders, were recently placed in a pit at Chicago and reduced to fragments with dynamite.

The United States has one medical man to every 600 inhabitants, while Canada has only one to 1200 inhabitants. Great Britain one to 1672 and Germany one to 3000.

Over 500,000,000 feet of lumber will be cut by the mills of Menominee, Marinette and Menekaune, Wis., this season. The entire amount will be shipped and sold in Chicago.

Griffin, Ga. has the largest peach orchard in the South, containing 50,000 trees, and covering most 600 acres. On the same farm are 4000 grafted apple trees and 5000 pear trees.

The trustees of Oglethrope's Colony in Georgia legislated in 1733, and here is what they did: "Enacted that the drink of rum in Georgia shall be absolutely prohibited, and that all which shall be brought there shall be staved."

The 11,071 fishermen of Maine in a year use 19,111,440 pounds of fish for bait, each pound landing ten pound of fish. How many fish worms are used and the number of times each fisherman spits on his hook, the census man neglects to tell.

In the six months ending June 30th, there were granted in the city of New York permits for 1265 new structures, estimated to cost $26,044,705; and for 1998 alterations of buildings estimated to cost $2,747,532—in all, $28,796,237 to be expended on dwellings and warehouses.

An Omaha correspondent of the 29th instant gives the following, which will be of interest to the Christian world, and particularly the denomination mentioned. He says: Almost an entire Pullman car on the Union Pacific west bound train to-day was occupied by some American Presbyterian missionaries, some accompanied by their wives and families, who are en route to various points in Eastern and Southern Asia. Rev. D. McGilvary, Mrs. McGilvary and son are bound for Laos; Rev. E. P. Dunlap, Mrs. Dunlap and three children, on their return to the kingdom of Siam, where they have already spent several years; Rev. S. C. Peoples, J. P. Hurst and Mrs. Hurst, go to Laos; Rev. Mr. McLaren and Mrs. McLaren go to Siam; and Misses Wishard, Warner and Wirt to Laos; Miss Linnell and Miss Griffin to the land of the white elephant; Miss Hesse and Miss Garvin go to Japan and Rev. W. W. Hayes and Mrs. Hayes to China. The party sailed on the 28th from San Francisco.

Mrs. Booth, wise and active coadjutor of the General in the Salvation Army, is the daughter of a lady of rank who was banished from friends and home in early life because she resolutely chose to marry a Methodist lay preacher in preference to a man of wealth and position who was a suitor for her hand. The story of this painful epoch in the life of her mother, and the years of devotion that followed, appears, more than anything else, to have inspired Mrs. Booth to enter upon the remarkable career she is now pursuing. Accordingly, at the age of 16, she dedicated herself wholly to religious work, and since then, for nearly twenty-five years, she has been speaking in public three or four times weekly, and doing a large share of the general executive business of the army. On being asked how she could do so much public work consistently with her duties as the mother of a large family, Mrs. Booth replied: "I did no visiting, and had no parties. I never left my children for any other purpose than to preach, and there are spent more time with them, after all, than mothers usually do." The training of the family had unquestionably been a success; the eldest five children being already among their father's most valuable and prominent helpers, and all the younger ones being as thoroughly imbued with the one idea of the household—devotion to God and mankind.

Dan Simpson, the veteran drummer-boy of 1812, has given the Bostonian society his portrait and the drum that John Robbins beat at the battle of Bunker Hill. He sends a characteristic letter with the gift. Mentioning that the 20th is his 92d birthday and that his friends have suggested that he make the society a birthday present, he says: "I give you the drum and portrait, to be framed by you, and both of them hung up. I should like to have the portrait over the drum in the memorial hall of the old state-house in Boston, and to be forever in the care and custody of the Bostonian society. If you could hang the drum (and possibly the portrait, for I was a drummer in the war of 1812) in sight of the lion and unicorn perhaps they would leave the building, as some timid people wish, as I hear, without being ordered to do so by the common council. For my part I like these old relics but it may be because I'm [illegible] like one myself." Daniel says that the oil portrait, which represents him holding the drum, is the work of Mr. Cobb, "a most worthy gentleman, who spent much time and labor to make it a good portrait."

Instructions to Indians.

WASHINGTON, Oct [illegible] ... to the honorable secretary of the interior ... attention is called to section 8 of an act making appropriations for current and contingent expenses of the Indian department and for fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the fiscal year 1883 and for other purposes approved May 1 1882, which reads as follows:

That the secretary of the interior shall cause such Indians as are now being subsisted in whole or in part by appropriations ... of treaty obligations ... that he will recommend to congress at the next session ... of such appropriations and that in consequence thereof their future support depends more upon their own exertions.

In compliance with the above you will give your Indians the notice required by this act of congress and assure them that while the government is disposed to treat them kindly and even generously and extend to them every needed assistance to enable them to make a comfortable living for themselves and families yet they must remember that there is now no treaty or other obligation on the part of the government to support them and that what they are now receiving is purely a gift and there must come a time when they will be expected to labor for their own support the same as the white man. Say to them that labor is not degrading, but on the contrary ennobling, and if they ever expect to become rich and powerful as the white races they must learn lessons of industry and economy. Fixing the Blame.

NEW YORK, Oct 7.—The coroner's jury investigating the responsibility of the late collision in the Harlem river tunnel by which three persons lost their lives find W D C Hawko, telegraph operator at the Ninety-sixth street station guilty of culpable negligence, George E Reed conductor of the New Haven and Hartford train guilty of gross and criminal negligence, Robert L Robbins brakeman guilty of culpable negligence and the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company guilty of gross and criminal negligence.

BOSTON Oct 7.—The railroad commissioners in vestigating the collision at Zoar on the State Hill road, September 19 which accident caused the death of three men and seriously injured two others charge Conductor Hurley on the train with the greatest carelessness.

Dakota Missions.

PORTLAND Me Oct 7.—At the meeting of the American board of foreign missions, President Bartlett of Dartmouth college presented a report of the committee on Dakota Indian missions. The report recommends that these missions be transferred to the American missionary association, leaving the details of arrangement to a presidential committee.

Gen E Whittlesey secretary of the ... commission spoke in behalf of the ... and in recommendation of the committee's report which was adopted.

Music Hall Revived.

CINCINNATI Oct 7.—Smith & Nixon Hall, the old music hall in which Jenny Lind sang, but which for a long time has been used by the chamber of commerce, was reopened last night as a musical hall. The concert was given by colleges musicians. Madge Wickam a talented violinist ... 14 years old held a prominent place on the programme.

Star Route Bribery.

WASHINGTON Oct 4.—Brewster Cameron this morning when questioned as to the time when he would make a report relative to the alleged attempt to bribe Dixon foreman of the star route jury says the matter is now undergoing investigation by the attorney general. He did not think it proper to say anything now.

Republicans Triumph.

NEW YORK Oct. [illegible]—The Tribune's Wilmington Del special thinks the election here yesterday for officers to serve next November almost surely betokens a republican triumph. Even democratic papers of Delaware concede the republicans have an even chance to win.

Base Ball.

NEW YORK Oct 4.—Chicagos, 3, Metropolitans 2. The Chicagos made one in the third inning and two in the fourth. The Metropolitans made one in the fifth inning and one in the seventh. The game was called at the end of the eighth inning, owing to darkness.

The Inter Oceanic Railroad.

NEW YORK Oct 7.—A meeting of the bondholders of the Tehuantepec Inter Oceanic railroad company was held to determine upon the best course to be pursued in the protection of their investments as affected by the recent declaration of forfeiture by the Mexican government ... whereas the grant ... this year ... the Mexican government ... the United States ... antagonism among the bondholders ... They say now there is scarcely a ray of hope for the company. They attribute the forfeiture by the Mexican company ... They asserted that the part played by their country in the matter reflects but little credit upon it. They are of the opinion that nothing can be obtained from the government of Mexico for the portion of road constructed. It is alleged that several offers by bankers have been made to the company to furnish them with money to carry on the works which offers were declined because the present directors wanted to keep the entire control of the company. The bondholders say they have not lost faith in the practicability of the scheme. They believe the Tehuantepec better than the Panama route and the latter road is paying a dividend of 4 per cent.

Opposed to Folger.

The Times and Tribune ... continue opposed to the candidacy of Folger and predicts his overwhelming defeat. His letter of acceptance ... in many quarters and ... votes is often praised as patriotic and statesman-like. Special dispatches from various quarters of the state show important defections among republican voters and politicians.

Schemes in Stocks.

NEW YORK Oct 7.—It is stated the late changes in the stock market has been with three objects in view. First the acquisition of the control of metropolitan stock by Gould, second the establishment of closer relations between the Ohio and Louisville and Nashville through Huntington's influence, third adjustment of terms between the Union Pacific and Central Pacific on a basis more favorable to the Central Pacific company.

Missionary Work.

PORTLAND Me Oct 7.—The 73d annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for foreign missions opened its sessions this afternoon in the city hall. President Mark Hopkins in the chair. There are 3000 from outside the city in attendance. The treasurer's report showed an expenditure of $649,424 of which five and four-tenths per cent went for the cost of agencies, publications and administration. The remainder was used directly in the work abroad.

Travelling by Bicycle.

CHEYENNE, Oct 4.—Will Rose journalist and bicycle tourist from Danville Ill who started on a trip to San Francisco on a bicycle six weeks ago is here. On account of the lateness of the season and the advice he has received he will go no farther west. There is danger of getting snow bound in the mountains. Rose came 1400 miles on his bicycle all alone.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

News from Cairo.

CAIRO Oct 7.—The khedive has decided to have medals struck for the British expeditionary force. The Nabalites have voted to present swords of honor to Gen Wolseley, Admiral Seymour and Gen Drury Lowe.

The khedive has conferred the grand cordon order of Medjidieh on Gen Adye.

Two batteries of artillery have started for Europe.

Five thousand refugees mostly Greeks, have returned to Alexandria.

Daver Pasha thinks the European inhabitants who now contribute nothing to municipal taxes should pay a share of the local taxes.

Gen Wolseley will probably arrive in London the 22d.

The khedive decorated a colonel and three other officers of each Highland regiment that aided in the suppression of the rebellion.

Opinions by Gladstone.

LONDON Oct 4.—Gladstone, in replying to an address at the railway station in Penmaen Mawr to day returned to the question of procedure in commons. He said the house could never meet the tremendous calls upon its energies unless it could shake off all timidity and fear of hasty proceedings, and resolutely to the task of bringing procedure into harmony with the calls upon it.

Referring to Egyptian affairs, he said he thanked God for the success of the British in Egypt. He thanked the army there and its skillful general. The war proved the army composed of men as brave as their forefathers every where. The war had been carried out from a love of peace and of the principles of peace. He trusted Egypt would again be prosperous and happy. His remarks were received with prolonged cheers.

Thinks America will Have Trouble.

CORK Oct 4.—Henry George in a speech here to day urged the nationalization of the land as the only solution of the land question not only in Ireland but in the United States, where he said he saw the land question coming to the front. George has not latterly been subjected to espionage.

Still in Ireland.

LONDON Oct 4.—The police believe the murderers of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Under Secretary Burke ... are still in Ireland but that unless the aid of an informer can be secured the crime cannot be brought home to the guilty persons. The weapons used in the commission of the murders were found some weeks ago.

TO THE PUBLIC.

It is generally conceded that the enterprise began in this city about five years ago, and known as the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE, has met with a success unparalleled in the mercantile history of this State, and almost [illegible] in its nature.

The cause underlying this success is not [illegible]. It is simply this: The people of Oregon having for so long a time been the victims of grasping and [illegible] dealers, having for so many years been ground under the heel of an avaricious guild, have at last had their eyes opened to the fact that their dollar, no less than anybody else's, is worth one hundred cents, and ought, by right, to be as much in their hands as if in the hands of the merchant.

To the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE [illegible] the credit of having released the people from the [illegible] yoke, of having redeemed them from their thraldom [illegible] having enlightened them upon a point so vital to their [illegible] prosperity. This vexes those merchants who are unable to keep pace with the march of time, who are loth to accustom themselves to smaller profits, and who never forget [illegible] because they never learn anything, and they cannot [illegible] themselves. They are spotted; the people have put the [illegible] on them, while the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE [illegible] become the household word in every family in the [illegible] is to them synonymous with honesty, integrity and [illegible] dealing.

To take advantage of the fair fame of which [illegible] FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE has a right to be [illegible] [illegible] from which their competitors do not shrink [illegible] sense of honor does not deter them from stooping [illegible] consequently it often occurs that when a party [illegible] time in this city, happens to fall in their clutches [illegible] to believe, when asking for the FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE, that he is just in the place he is [illegible] every device, chicanery and false pretense [illegible] received. This has occurred so often that the [illegible] proprietor of the above mentioned place, [illegible] to notify those who have so long [illegible] disreputable practice, that unless they cease [illegible] though reluctantly, been [illegible] counsel. He has, in accordance with the provisions [illegible] of the State, delivered to and had recorded in [illegible] Secretary of State, the words "FARMERS AND MECHANICS' STORE," as a TRADE MARK, to be used as a [illegible] tion to his store. The undersigned [illegible] to an infringement upon his rights [illegible] a moment so philanthropic as to [illegible] the benefit of his labor, and, above all, [illegible] to be thus imposed upon. He therefore [illegible] notifies all persons so using his trade mark [illegible] he will hold them strictly responsible [illegible] cute them to the extent of the law, which [illegible]

"Any person, partnership, firm or corporation ... shall use, or cause to be used, ... designation or description ... or profit, shall forfeit to the use of the owner of the ... trade mark ... the value thereof, to be recovered by the said owner in any court having jurisdiction ..."—Code of Oregon, Sec. 3, Chapter XXXII, Miscellaneous Laws, page 628.
